Trading Platform and Service Overview

The Services include tools for practicing trading and trading on other financial markets, as well as access to analytical tools. These services are provided by the Provider and sometimes through third-party applications. When you use the simulated trading tools, you're not actually trading with real money. The funds you use for practice are not real. You can't use these pretend funds for real trading, and you won't get any real profits or have to cover any real losses unless we agree otherwise in writing.
